

What is upcycling?

The environment is important to Gorilla Glass.

Upcycling is a process through which we transform our waste and discarded materials into a high-quality product.

These innovative and often unpredictable production techniques have led us on a path of aesthetic freedom which emphasizes variance and difference rather than homogenization.

These upcycling techniques are the perfect fit for our love of handcrafting unique items of the highest quality, as well as an opportunity to reduce our impact on the environment.
